16.3 dark brown 9yr old gelding. Has BE evented to novice level BS to newcomers and unaffiliated dressage to elementary level. He hacks alone and in company I ride and lead my son on his pony he will cope with the heaviest of traffic as well as walk gallop or whatever you like through fields. He doesn't need ridden every day but equally doesn't get fed up if you do. He has attended pony club rallies camp and has been 1st and 2nd 2017 and 2019 at pony club area eventing with different riders as a stand in.

His competing name is Don't tell The husband II he is not going to excel beyond novice eventing however he would be ideal for grassroots eventing or showjumping a rider wanting to do higher level riding club he generally scores low 30s dressage (eventing) so he could improve and go on to pure dressage. He would also hack hunt or whatever else. He would however be useless at showing as he's not very beautiful he's got big ears and long legs!

I want a really good home for him as in the past when I bought him there was issues in the stable as he had been scared and therefore would be defensive however now he is very trusting and confident. He is good to handle and shoe and box and happy to stand all day at events and he is good to clip apart from his tickley bits.

He has a big fun character and he is great to be around he loves attention especially a jam sandwich at a competition!

Someone could have a lot of fun with this guy!

All that said he is NOT a plod along but he has NEVER bucked reared or bolted. He's a proper fun horse and would love him to go to a great fun home.

Price negotiable to right home please no time wasters.
